as we see it

Television's intellectual-type critics, meaning those who write for high-flown, low-circulation magazines, have a pat phrase that goes something like this: "TV's artistic accomplishments are far behind the medium's technical perfection." In brief, they contend that television is like an oxcart traveling on a superhighway.

Obviously we don't hold with that line of thinking, if you'd call it thinking, if only because the accusation is so general. All television isn't good and all television isn't bad, despite what the ivory tower lads say.

Matter of fact, in one important field, TV is certainly far from technically perfect, although many of the programs are excellent. That field is filmed programs.

Frankly, we don't know whether the film is bad or the method of telecasting needs improvement. But when most of the shows finally appear on our screens they lack the clear, sharp quality of live television. Yet, more and more programs are being filmed, and unless something is done about improving reception, and done soon, most of what we'll be watching will be pretty fuzzy.

The task of perfecting the quality of filmed shows is by no means impossible. In Britain, the film and the method of telecasting it are so good that viewers can't tell the difference between film and live shows. In America, the difference is all too evident.

A number of new film projectors for TV stations have come on the market recently and research is in progress to find ways of achieving even better results than the new equipment offers.

Let's hope the problem will continue to receive the industry's attention. It is of more immediate importance than color or 3-D or other projects now occupying the minds and time of electronic engineers.—M. P.

NEW YORK Bob Stahl reports:

ED SULLIVAN figures to lean heavily on his popular Toast of the Town profiles again this season. Already on the docket for the fall are "The GENE AUTRY Story" (September 20), "The Metropolitan Opera Story" (November 1 and November 8) and "The DAVID O. SELZNICK Story," for which no date has yet been set . . . The famed THORNE SMITH Topper series, successful movie material during the Forties, makes its TV bow October 9 with LEO G. CARROLL in the title role.

NBC has instituted an enlarged film coverage for Congressional investigations. The recent BISHOP G. BROMLEY OXNAM testimony was the first given the fuller treatment. The Protestant prelate is being considered by ABC for an inspirational program along the lines of BISHOP FULTON J. SHEEN's Du Mont stanza.

STU ERWIN rates as longest distance commuter in TV. The comedian, who lives on Park Avenue, flies to Hollywood for three-week spells of video film-making and then back to Manhattan, where he prefers to live . . . ABC pops its own entry into the tearjerker derby with a Friday night item called Comeback, which has been described as a cross between This Is Your Life and Strike It Rich. Show debuts Sept. 18.

The still-unsettled Life With Father series for CBS is changing its title to Life With Mother And Father . . . ABC dropping its Tuesday night fights . . . PAUL WHITEMAN's erstwhile TV Teen Club may land a network spot in the near future . . . NBC's summer replacement Name That Tune looks like a good bet to stick it out through the fall season on Monday nights.

Notre Dame's pessimistic football coach FRANK LEAHY will kick off a 15-minute sports show Saturday, Sept. 26, for ABC. The gloom that Coach LEAHY has spread about his team's chances will probably be dispelled week after week when films of Notre Dame's game of that day are shown after LEAHY's comments.

DR. BERGEN EVANS will have trouble keeping up with his professorial duties at Northwestern this season. The prof has just been signed for his third TV show, this one to be called Cabbages and Kings. A discussion-type program, it will make its initial plunge late in September on ABC.

BETTY HUTTON's long-awaited TV debut will finally take place when the Atom Blonde guest stars on GEORGE JESSEL's premiere on ABC. The JESSEL vehicle's title, incidentally, has been changed from Banquet Table to simply The Georgie Jessel Show.

HOLLYWOOD — Dan Jenkins reports:

ED GARDNER has come back from Puerto Rico to make a film series based on Duffy's Tavern. HAL ROACH, JR. is set to do the filming . . . MARGE and GOWER CHAMPION, warming up for some major TV guest appearances this fall, have completed their personal appearance stint at the Cocoanut Grove here and open at the Flamingo in Las Vegas August 27.

Out of the Flamingo is GEORGE RAFT, of the I Am The Law series. He's ill with an allergy . . . Comics PAUL GILBERT and EDDY FOY, JR., newcomers to the TV scene, have signed long-term contracts with NBC-TV . . . GEORGE BURNS and GRACIE ALLEN, back from Hawaii, have resumed shooting on their TV films . . . Add GEORGE GOBEL, a discovery of the Saturday Night Review, to the NBC-TV contract list.

KEEFE BRASSELLE will do at least five major guest spots out of New York this fall--his first tussle with TV. . . . BOB HOPE, who likes to keep busy, will do a series of personal appearances in between his monthly shows for NBC . . . BRIAN DONLEVY, who has completed 40 films in his Dangerous Assignment series, is now looking for a new property and will probably get started soon either in a Western series titled Jungle Foot Jackson or a dramatic show called Reno English.

Actor TED HECHT figures to make real money out of a role he recently played in the Fireside Theater film, "Top Kick"? He's suing producer-director FRANK WISBAR for $125,000 for injuries he received in a scene which had him "beaten up" by a fellow actor . . . ABC-TV is buying out the Racket Squad film series and will probably continue to make new episodes. There are 109 of them already.

RICHARD BARRON and BETTY MEARS are headed for Sweden to produce an adventure series on film titled Danger Zone. Series is already sold for fall sponsorship in the East . . . RAY MILLAND has finished his first 13 Meet Mr. McNutley films and starts on the second 13 late this month . . . DUNCAN RENALDO, the Cisco Kid of TV fame, is making personal appearances with his broken neck still in a cast.

ELSA LANCHESTER is being sought to play the wife of the Mississippi showboat king, Captain Billy Bryant, in a film series based on Bryant's life . . . Biggest TV headache in the next few years will be the almost complete lack of qualified repairmen for color TV sets. There's already an acute shortage of technicians to work on black-and-white sets.

FRED ALLEN'S BACK ON TV TRAIL AND HE STILL SWINGS A TOMAHAWK

FRED ALLEN, who returned to television last Tuesday night in the Mark Goodson-Bill Todman production, Judge for Yourself, still feels entitled to "judge for himself" about TV.

"If television is ever given credit for anything," he said during an interview, "it will be that it made the American public tired of grief.

"I guess they're not interested in entertaining people anymore, they just want to make their audiences miserable."

Allen was airing his views of one of what he calls the "misery shows" before he went on to other TV matters.

"A friend of mine went to a rehearsal of one of those shows," he said, "and they were actually telling one of those pathetic contestants what to say. 'You're paralyzed.' 'I'm paralyzed.' 'Your house was washed away by a flood.' 'My house was washed away by a flood.'

Allen's new television show lacks role for his radio-star wife, Portland Hoffa.

"Can you imagine doing that to those poor people and then foisting it off on the audience that pays your bills? I don't know. When they start rehearsing grief, there's something wrong."

Allen has no intention of adding to the misery in his new program.

His famous creations from Mrs. Nussbaum to Titus Moody to Senator Claghorn to One Long Pan will not be on hand, but the Allen of the precise phrase and the elegant ad lib will be. It is almost superfluous to say that everyone in the trade is pulling for Fred to click on TV even if only as a virtuoso conversationalist. Recently, Fred dredged up a few of his many thoughts on TV and related subjects. We quote a sampling of them here.

"Everybody is an expert on TV these days. The other day I went into the drug store at the Park Sheraton Hotel to get a soda. The man behind the counter was carrying on a heated conversation with one of his customers. He asked him, 'Did you see Kraft Theater last night?' and when the customer said he had, our expert immediately says, 'What about that lighting?' Seems TV will really have to watch its standards when even soda jerks start criticizing them.

"Another man I know tells me that he's sick of seeing Johnny Bratton fight on television, that Bratton fights too much and he wishes the sponsor would stop televising Bratton fights. Here's Bratton, one of the world's top welterweights and this fellow is tired of watching him. Next thing you know, somebody will call up Leo Durocher and tell him he's sick of seeing Monte Irvin playing left field, so will Leo please take him out of the lineup.

"I got on the subway the other day and they've got a scale down there that advertises that you get the first five pounds free. I don't know what you're going to do with five free pounds, but that's what they advertise."

Despite his own inactivity as a TV performer, Fred is an avid fan of the medium and his observations about it are thoughtful and well-taken. Asked if he thought that TV was making the U. S. a nation of idiots with pointed heads as some alarmed educators have warned, Fred answered:

"No, I'm very optimistic that TV will get much better as it goes along. If you'll remember, the first big stars on radio were the comedians with slogans like Joe Penner with his 'D'ya wanna buy a duck?' and Jack Pearl with 'Vass you dere, Sharley?' But people got tired of them after awhile and the shows with a little more thought behind them, with story lines and character development, like Jack Benny, replaced them. Fellows like Jackie Gleason, Red Buttons and Jerry Lewis are using slogans now, but I think all that will change. Some good new comedians are coming along, like George Gobel, and standards are bound to improve.

"Why, it's happened to some shows already. Look how Goodman Ace has taken the Milton Berle show in hand. It was a bad show because they did nothing but televise a vaudeville show. Ace gave it a story line by bringing in Maxie, the secretary, and making Berle a harassed character. I'm not a fan of Berle, but that's a much better show than it used to be."

Possibly the favorite topic for discussion among TV folk is the continued tremendous popularity of Arthur Godfrey. Fred, as baffled as anyone else, commented with his characteristic candor, "Arthur talks more during one week than the rest of the comedians put together, yet I defy anyone to be able to quote anything he said. That's one thing that has happened to TV. Stars have replaced standards with their own ego."

Trouble with Censors

Allen also had a few pungent things to say about censorship, another controversial subject at present. As a radio satirist, Fred was under constant supervision from the network, for fear he would nettle some group which would boycott the network.

"They were so afraid I'd hurt someone's feelings that they had two lawyers—they both were so short that they weren't good for anything but to put things on top of—reading my scripts every week. Once we had a story about the invention of the electric iron. The punch line was to have a Chinese laundryman go berserk, because he lost all his business, and to blow up a powerhouse. But they said we couldn't do it because it would offend Con Edison (New York's electric utility). So they changed it from a powerhouse to a powderhouse. They hadn't the vaguest idea that the line they substituted didn't mean a thing. So I had to stay up all night and rewrite the script.

"On this new show, I don't think I'll have any more trouble like that. Everything I say will be on the wing before a censor can get near it."

Advised to Take It Easy

Because of high blood pressure, Fred will have to leave the strenuous comedy activities to others. Under doctor's orders, he is too sick to take part in the writing and acting of a show, but he's well enough to do something along his present show's lines. The type of show Fred did on radio is apparently gone forever.

Fred's immobile face with its celebrated baggy eyes has been compared to the look of a mournful cocker spaniel. It's said that his face is the main reason he hasn't come over on TV. Fred explains his lack of success another way. "On radio we could conjure up voices that would stimulate the imagination. On TV, there's no room for imagination. The picture's right there. And I guess our show was fundamentally a radio show. Minerva Pious, who used to play Mrs. Nussbaum, is one of the best dialecticians in the business, but she can't get a job on TV because she isn't telegenic."

In order to get a rest before starting his new TV show, Fred headed up to Maine with his wife, Portland (she's definitely retired), where he was a neighbor of Doc Rockwell, a yearly visitor on the Allen radio show. Fred's loyalty to his old pals is one of the reasons he's one of the most beloved people in the trade. Another is his cracker-barrel nature which will make him argue topics of the day with anybody from a bootblack to an NBC vice-president.

A CIRCUS IN YOUR LIVING ROOM

Claude Kirchner, Mary Hartline and show's lively clowns.

EVERY so often there's a crisis on Super Circus. Temperament you know.

No, it's not the clowns—Cliffy, Nicky and Scampy. Nor is it easygoing Claude Kirchner, ringmaster of the circus in your living room, or beauteous Mary Hartline, the band leader. It's those prima donna animal stars, who often surpass opera sopranos in fits of temper and stubbornness.

There was the case of Herbert, the orangutan unicyclist who took a strange dislike to permanent bandmaster Bruce Chase. Bruce's arm-waving motions with the baton irritated Herbie who felt the extra action on the set was distracting attention from his performance. So the outraged orangutan flung his unicycle at the musician.

Herbie's trainer, in a peace move, slipped the temperamental artist a pair of roller skates to finish his act. But red-haired Herbie, still angry, pitched both at the bandmaster. That concluded target practice for the day and the protesting ape was led away, jabbering ugly threats at the spotlight-swiper.

Elephants Balk

Another day, an 11-year-old elephant trainer was calmly leading his pachyderms down one of Chicago's busy thoroughfares to a Super Circus rehearsal. The trip was plodding but steady until the animals reached the building and found a massive pit in front of the theater. (Workmen were completing construction of a new underpass.) Probably recalling past centuries when their ancestors fell over mountain cliffs in India, the elephants refused to budge. Finally, Super Circus producer Phil Patton and his stage hands dug up cardboard trees, shrubs, vines and scenery from the prop department. These they placed along the rails surrounding the pit. Within five minutes, the elephants were prodded into the theater. Traffic resumed. And the show began.

Easy does it: hard part was getting him into theater.

Even the supposedly gentle camels have threatened the Super Circus-TV relationship. One of the docile humpbacks developed a bad case of stage fright during a show and mistook the stage manager for a cuspidor. Towels, anyone?

Vernon, the Vindictive Vulture, wrote an exciting chapter in the Super Circus book of experiences. A ham at heart, Vernon broke loose, upset a cat routine onstage, streaked for the audience, perched on the kiddies' shoulders, and finally settled among the moppets in the balcony. He was captured only after he had ruined the commercial.

Case of the Frisky Cub

Again there was the time a frisky cub bear disappeared just before his act. The frantic and frightened stage crew found him playing peekaboo behind some dark scenery.

Mary Hartline's hassle with a jealous female monkey was another case for the Super Circus dockets. Mary's hair, a thing of beauty to most viewers, was a source of irritation to the monkey, whose wispy brown strands clung damply to its owner's head. Unable to stand the competition, the frisky little monkey escaped from its trainer, grabbed two fistsful of Mary's blond tresses and pulled. Mary was rescued and the animal led away to do penance in its cage.

The only "extra" that could tighten the union between Super Circus and television would be color. But until that time, the Big Toppers can depend on the animals to supply a full rainbow of temperaments to the show lineup.

LET'S MAKE THOSE

BY BOB TAYLOR

FRIENDLY . . . This 'friendly' model will please the fellows and save running to the refrigerator every time the announcer tells you to.

WIFEY . . . Watch soap-opera all day! Be really miserable when the old man comes home. With automatic kitchen, cigaret and soft drink dispenser. Sound-proof playpen, extra charge.

FRITZY . . . If your neighbor won't buy his own set, try 'Fritzy.' One squeeze puts your set on the fritz. And anyone would think you were merely holding a mouse.

FRESHY . . . If your kids have TV pallor and living room crouch, they can enjoy sunshine and Howdy Doody, too, with 'Freshy' the sportable portable.

SETS FUNCTIONAL

BRIDGY . . . Bridge and TV will mix if you buy this little number. You can play during the commercials, which allow you p-l-e-n-t-y of time.

DINEY . . . Your kids won't have to leave the table to watch their favorite programs if you have the Diney model. Is it cheap? Why Shore!

SITTY . . . Hold that baby-sitter! Roomy six cubic foot refrigerator holds enough food to feed sitter entire evening. And it's softer, much softer.

WASHY . . . Commemorating that immortal Chinese phrase—'No TV, no washy.' Do your dishes in comfort, in your living room. It's fireproof.

TV's Week: Don McNeill's Breakfast Club debut on TV this fall will be minus some of those old familiar faces. Johnny Desmond (who will be out in Hollywood making a picture) is being replaced by Rusty Draper, of "Gambler's Guitar" recording fame. And Eileen Parker has already succeeded Peggy Taylor who left her plush thrush role to play the niteries in Europe.

Two new TV channels (both ultra high frequency) are in Milwaukee's future. Channel 19, WOKY-TV, begins operations about Sept. 26 as an ABC affiliate, while Channel 25, WCAN-TV, will begin televising about Aug. 25.

Any fish stories for sale? A to Z of Cookery chefs, Alida Drake and John Zenker are looking for the best fish story and matching recipe. To enter, viewers should send a postcard with story facts and recipe to the show, c/o WGN-TV, 441 N. Michigan, Chicago. Winner will appear on Sept. 1 show.

Actress Paula Houston, summoned from New York for a feature role in NBC soaper, The Bennetts, went through Chicago's rigorous apartment-hunting ordeal. She finally found one, signed a year's lease and paid her agent's fee. Now it's rumored she'll be written out of her starring role. After eight weeks, execs decided Paula was miscast.

Another departure: Scotti Scott, the blonde attraction on Tom Duggan's show, has been erased in favor of Terrible Tom's fiancee, Ruth Nelson. It's reported that both station and sponsor objected, but Tom won out. Scotti's now off to test Gotham opportunities.

Shows in the Works: Phil Lord, grand old man of Chicago acting circles, is scheduled to star as Capt. Hartz, a retired seaman, in the video production of Adventures of Capt. Hartz.

Advance Tips on Shows: Religion on TV stages a comeback this fall with the return of two favorites: Faith of Our Fathers slated for an Oct. 4 revival in the 7 to 7:30 PM Sunday slot on WGN-TV, and Pattern for Living due back Sept. 5 on WBKB at tentative time of 3:30 PM. WBKB will televise Chgo's. St. Peter Church dedication on Labor Day.

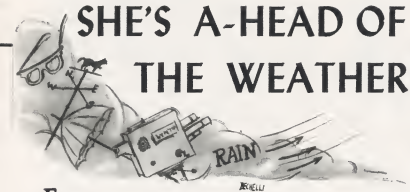
SHE'S A-HEAD OF THE WEATHER



FORECAST: Rhinestones and raindrops.

EVEN as far back as the 17th Century, men were wisecracking about women's hair coverings. In fact, an English essayist and poet of that era, Joseph Addison, wrote sagely, "There is not so variable a thing in nature as a lady's headdress."

We would be inclined to disagree—but only slightly—with Mr. Addison. Nature has one more variable that's just as unpredictable as milady's chapeaux—the weather.

Now comes along WBBM-TV's Lee Phillip, a comely blonde lass with an eye for practicality, and combines the two. Result: a hat for every climate variation.

Lee models a different hat each night on her 10:10 PM weather show, Meet Miss Lee (Monday through Friday, Channel 2), to symbolize tomorrow's forecast. A close-fitting hat, for example, signifies rain. Swirls of veiling predict fog or storms.

Some of her creations (designed by Raymond Hudd of Chicago's Hudd Hat Studio) are appetite-tempters and would rival Carmen Miranda's conversation-pieces for flamboyancy. When Lee staggers under a brim loaded with strawberries, tomatoes, onions and watermelon, you can be sure there's balmy summer weather ahead. For winter, she's planning snowmen, Santa Clauses, reindeer and Christmas trees that light up.

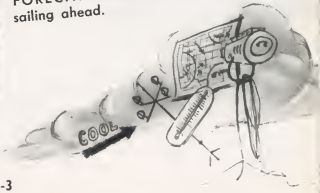
Lee and a variety of her weather-inspired chapeaux are pictured here. Whatever the elements, we'll bet you agree that the weather seems to have gone to Miss Lee's head.

FORECAST: Light, butterfly-bright.

FORECAST: Smooth sailing ahead.

FORECAST: April showers, May flowers.

FORECAST: A sunny exposure.



In the '20s, it was mah-jongg; in the '30s, monopoly; in the '40s, canasta; today it's: "Guess the Age of That TV Movie!"

All you need for this game is a television set, an easy chair and a couple of hours to spare. It's ideal for anyone who'd consider even croquet strenuous. Rules are simple: without looking at story "credits," one must name the year a particular epic being shown was first released on the unsuspecting public. Only the visible clues and your imagination may be used. It's no fair consulting grandpa.

Some Signs of Age

Veterans at this fast-growing parlor passion are expected to name the exact year, although beginners may content themselves with coming close. In this regard, a few tips to the novice may help. You can assume it's a very old movie: if Erich Von Stroheim still has hair; if the cast includes Douglas Fairbanks, Sr. instead of Jr.; if the gangsters use a Stutz as the getaway car; if Charlie Chan is still childless.

True vintage movies—1936 or earlier—are often recognizable by their stars. These hoary sagas may feature such names as Jack La Rue, Wallace Ford or Conrad Nagel as the hero. The heroine may be such leading ladies as Mary Brian, Fay Wray, or, of course, "the ever-popular Mae Busch."

NRA Giveaway

Another dead-giveaway is the venerable NRA Blue Eagle emblem, often exposed in background shots. This noble bird became extinct in 1935, so its presence shows the movie is a product of the New Deal heyday in '33 and '34.

Ladies enjoy an advantage over men in the game. The weird styles sported in these ancient films betray their age like nothing else. Any damsel worth her salt can pinpoint such a movie precisely from the hemlines, hairdos and chapeaus on view—those Irene Castle bobs, boas and cloche hats, for example. Everything but bustles.

The males are one up on the women, however, with their superior store of lore on autos and such. With little effort, the flivvers used in the inevitable "chase" can be identified as to model and make. It's nostalgic, too. Many a man probably sighs deeply at the sight of an old Cord, Model A or Pierce-Arrow.

There are further tip-offs such as old-fashioned telephones, mikes and other props that now can be found only in museums. And then, of course, these TV movies have songs. If your musical memory goes back to the dim, dim past like Herbie Mintz', you may recall when they were popular.

That will give you a brief idea of this exciting pastime. Follow these pointers and others you'll discover as you go along, and in no time, you'll be an expert. But don't bother with horse operas. In 50 years, they haven't changed at all.—Jim Killen.

OLD IS OLD?

That appealing little girl is, of course, Shirley Temple. She and Andy Clyde starred in "Our Girl Shirley" comedy.

Video movies don't go back this far but the plots often do. Recognize that stalwart hero on the left? He's the late Alan Hale.

THE CRITICS' CURSE— AND A RESOLUTION

by JACK MABLEY

I want very much to see Studs Terkel's new shows, on both radio and television, succeed. Studs is one of the few men in television who won't compromise with schmaltz. He'll do an honest show, and an intelligent show, or he won't go on the air.

Studs' standards are the kind that critics of television are constantly crying for. It isn't easy to find a Studs Terkel, or a station like WBKB which will make a place for him, or a sponsor like Corina cigars which will pay for quality programs.

Studs' new show on Monday nights at 10 is an attempt at informative entertainment. It has interviews, but Studs shuns the word. He wants it to be conversation with the guests—the kind you'd have if they were sitting in your living room. The across-the-table, hand-pumping television interview is sad and tired. Studs is trying to do something fresh.

The first show was panned by several newspaper critics. I haven't the remotest idea whether it was good or bad, because I was one of the guests. I was flattered by recognition from Miss Kern, who said I spoke English and looked bored. I was never less bored in my life. That's what television will do to you.

The show was rocky. It will be improved as the mistakes are recognized and corrected. I hated to see the criticism. Sponsors read those things, and frequently decide the fate of a show on the basis of what was done on the first, and worst, program.

Critics are supposed to write honest judgments of what they see on the screen. I've always done it, and I think that others in Chicago do it, too.

But I am puzzled by the problem of writers who criticize most of what they see, set up a clamor for quality programs, and then mercilessly pan a program which makes an attempt at honesty and intelligence, but falls short on zip and hoopla.

A troublesome situation will come up next winter or spring, or whenever Chicago's educational station, Channel 11, finally gets on the air.

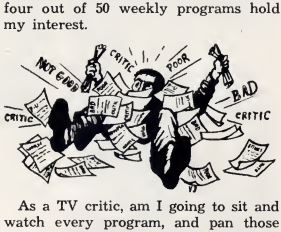
This station will be a disappointment to many, and will come in for some real roasting from the very people who have been most violent in their demands for educational television. The critics will lead the pack.

Good—and Bad

Great expectations have been built up for the station. Symphony concerts, tours of museums, sparkling classroom discussions, valuable instructions have been promised us.

And we'll get them. But we'll also get programs that are dull and heavy. Any station coming on the air has fantastic problems. Channel 11, with a limited budget and operated largely by newcomers and educators with no TV experience, will go through some classic snafus. A lot of them will come into our living rooms.

As a viewer I'll be very happy, and will feel my contributions to the station are extremely worthwhile, if three or four out of 50 weekly programs hold my interest.



As a TV critic, am I going to sit and watch every program, and pan those which don't come up to standards set by commercial stations? It's quite a problem.

I think all of us should have more tolerance for programs which TRY to give us quality. I, for one, will try to practice it.

TV GUIDE TOURNEY SET FOR TEE-OFF

Record Turn-Out of Stars

Public Invited Free

This is the week, and Friday (August 21) is the day. A record number of stars will attend TV GUIDE's 3rd Celebrity Golf Tourney to be staged at Bunker Hill Golf Club, 6635 N. Milwaukee Ave. in Chicago.

This year's tourney looms as the liveliest and most successful yet. There'll be 18 holes of exciting golf with luncheon and dinner for all the participants. Lovely Sabie models will act as scorekeepers.

The public is cordially invited free. Tee-off times are from sunrise to sunset. It's a wonderful chance to see and meet your favorite local radio and TV performers.

Some of the many stars who will be on hand for the tourney are shown on this page, and below is a list of 1952 winners in the various prize divisions:

HERE'S HOW TO GET TO BUNKER HILL

Bunker Hill Golf Club, site of TV GUIDE'S Third Celebrity Golf Tourney, is located on Chicago's northwest side, at 6635 N. Milwaukee Ave. Quickest routes are:

By Car: Take the Outer Drive north to Foster Ave., take Foster Ave. west to Milwaukee Ave. and turn north on Milwaukee Ave., which will take you to the entrance of Bunker Hill at 6635 N.

By CTA: Take the Milwaukee Ave. bus to the end of the line at 6400 N. and walk north two blocks.

MOLLYCUES

by MOLLY POTKIN

COPYRIGHT 1953

Boys and girls, if you connect the lines in the puzzle, you'll have a poem about that very smart group of youngsters, The Quiz Kids. Now, let's see how smart you are. How many words can you make out of: The Quiz Kids? For the neatest, longest list, I'll award $1; second prize, 50 cents; next 25 prizes, a copy of my big picture puzzle book.

Mail your entries to Mollycues, c/o TV GUIDE, 731 S. Plymouth Court, Chicago 5, Ill., before Monday, August 31. Solution to the poem will be printed here next week.

Solution to last week's puzzle was Garfield, the goose on Garfield Goose & Friend.

SPORTSCAST

by ED PAZDUR

CHUCK DAVEY, erstwhile ranking welterweight, pens us from East Lansing, Michigan that "We're expecting a little contender Aug. 20."

Taking their golf clubs to TV GUIDE's Celebrity Golf Tourney for the first time are popular NBC-TV stars George Gobel, John Conrad and Elmer The Elephant, IBC's Tommy King, sportscaster Norm Barry (heavy favorite to win the sportscaster's title), Chet Roble, Grover Allen and Sabie.

Duggan

Press celebrities vying for the first time are Irv Kupcinet and Gene Kessler of the Sun-Times, and John Whitaker of the Hammond Times. Tom Kouzmanoff of the Chgo.-American is defending champ.

Playing golf for the first time in their lives will be sportscasters Bob Elson and Jack Drees. Duffer Elson remains a bit skeptical but Drees is determined to see it to the bitter end of 18 holes.

WBBM-TV's Lee Phillip hopes to bring clear weather by wearing a golf hat during her weather forecast the night before the tourney...Toni Gilman who shot around 160 in 1951, holed out with a 140 last year, is now reportedly pressing 105 to become a real threat among the gals...There'll be celebrities galore. Make up a party and you'll enjoy seeing your TV favorites in person Friday, Aug. 21. See details on page 7.

Cuffnotes: Tom Duggan's debut on the ABC-TV network for the Tam O'Shanter Golf Championships proved a big success. The sportscaster handled himself well, treated guests cordially and conducted good interviews. It was particularly delightful to see him out-maneuver New York's Harry Wismer for vantage points. The guy can be good when the chip's off his shoulder!

For exciting Stock Car Races, join Bob Drews and Ed Pazdur 10 pm Sundays, WBBM-TV.

A "Wonderful" Show

I think Wonderful John Acton is the best show on television. Let's hope that it becomes a permanent institution on Sunday nights! — William K. Boyle, Chicago.

No China Dish

Natco

On a recent show Natco the Clown said that years ago we had to import chop suey from China. Would someone please tell him that chop suey is an American dish?—R. W., West Chicago, Ill. (Those who investigate such great matters say you're right, but term "Chop suey" is Chinese, meaning "miscellaneous pieces."—Ed.)

Collects Cowboy Pix

Thanks for TV GUIDE's cowboy album. The idea is nice, and the colorful pictures will make a fine scrapbook.—Cathleen Grabske, Chicago.

Godfrey Fan Strikes Back

R. V. Finney of Evanston in the July 31 issue told about his "I don't like—— because . . . society." For a person who dislikes the Godfrey show so much, he sure knows a lot about it. I suggest that he take the trouble to turn the little "off" button off. — Barbara Nelson, Lyons, Wis.

Sweet and Simple

I think R. V. Finney of Evanston doesn't know good talent when he sees or hears it. Godfrey has it. The McGuire Sisters are the best since the Andrews Sisters of old, and if Lu Ann Sims is coy, it just proves there still are some sweet girls left in this world. As for Julius La Rosa, at least you don't need a box of Kleenex or smelling salts handy when you listen to him.—Mrs. James Berkes, Maple Park, Ill.

Mysterious Mabel

Would you be so kind as to tell me who plays the part of Mable on the Rocky King show?—William E. Kamm, Aurora, Ill. (Grace Carney is the voice for Mabel, Rocky's ever-loving wife, heard but not seen on the show.—Ed.)

Those Talented Fall Guys

As a wrestling fan, I catch both the Rainbo show Wednesdays and the Marigold show on Saturday night. I can't see why Rainbo can't give us the national talent that Marigold does—guys like Lord Blears and Lord Layton, Killer Kowalski, Ronnie Etchison, Verne Gagne and Don Evans.—Dr. Herman Kushner, Chicago.

TV in a Slump?

Summer television is really on the moldy side. The good shows can be counted on one hand. What has made TV so putrid are the repeat shows as well as all the quiz and panel programs. An Ex-Tee-Vee-coholic, Chicago. (Have you sworn off for good or till fall?—Ed.)

A Family Affair

I find Search for Tomorrow one of the most inspiring serials on TV. My two daughters, both under six, like the stories so well they run in the house and watch it every day. I guess it's because the show includes, two little girls, Patty and Janet.—Mrs. Edward Jeziorski, South Bend, Ind.

Where's Charley?

Laughton

What happened to This Is Charles Laughton? We always watched it because it was so different from other programs. His readings were wonderful. — C. Miller, Gary, Ind. (Show went off when films ran out. New series may be made.—Ed.)

TV FORECAST OF

AND WEEK'S HIGHLIGHTS

Second TV nursery school: Mrs. Emma D. Sheehy, distinguished Columbia university authority on development and learning habits of pre-school children, brings to Chicagoland its second television nursery school, The Childcraft Show. Setting will be an actual nursery classroom, with furniture and "props" scaled to youthful sizes. Mrs. Sheehy has announced three initial aims for the series: (1) Prepare youngsters for school; (2) help them form an identity with the classroom; and (3) help instruct their parents as to what children are doing in kindergarten. Mrs. Sheehy is currently in Chicago on leave-of-absence from Columbia and is an associate professor in the university's Teachers' College. Childcraft producer is Phil Patton, who also produces Super Circus. Show will be telecast Monday through Friday beginning August 24, 9:30 a.m. on WBKB, channel 7

Sheehy

Cavalcade of news: Outstanding news events from 1945 to 1953 will be presented on Assignment Tomorrow, Sunday at 6:00 p.m. on NBC-TV, channel 5. James Fleming will narrate ten of the biggest stories as selected by NBC newsmen. Films include the A-bomb at Hiroshima, Communist victory in China, the war in Korea, Texas City explosions and the death of Stalin. Show will cancel Operation Neptune and Super Ghost for this week only.

Wisconsin State Fair: Milwaukee's WTMJ-TV will telecast approximately 28 programs from their 1953 State Fair, with shows originating from the Journal Communications Center, Radio Hall and the Coliseum. (Please check Milwaukee TV listings beginning on page A-44 for exact time, locations and events.)

"I Spy." Stu stumbles into a fracas with his romance-ridden daughter:

Dear Boss:

My littlest guy can't quite figure how all the lions and tigers in Ramar of the Jungle can be on Channel 7 Sunday afternoon from 3:00 to 3:30 and then rush over to Channel 5 right at 3:30 to appear on Zooparade and then rush back to Channel 7 again at 4:00 for Super Circus.

When I started to explain he said, never mind -- he'd rather write to Mr. Wizard. Sometimes I think he thinks I'm not too bright.

Last week one of my favorite can-do-no-wrong people brought me some happy TV moments. He was the ex-sports writer Paul Gallico who wrote the wise and witty romantic comedy, "The Roman Kid," for Westinghouse Summer Theater. Gallico is the sort of writer sports can't do full justice to, and TV can't do without much longer.

Have you noticed the sound-alikes on TV? Here are some voice-twins I've caught lately -- maybe you have spotted some more: Gloria Lewis (the non-smear lips girl on Blind Date) and Betty Furness; Actors Henry Fonda and John Forsythe and Joe Maross (hero of "The Roman Kid") and MC Eddie Albert (Nothing But the Best.)

Incidentally, one of these days I'd like to write Nothing But the Truth about Nothing But the Best.

Tom Duggan's apoplectic blast at each and every TV program in sight the other Tuesday night reminded me of an ancient Hebrew muscle man named Samson. He was the "comedian" who pulled the pillars out from under the roof and "brought down the house" -- on his enemies and himself.

GAGMEN NAME BENSON TOP COMEDY QUIZ MAN

by WM. A. QUE

"Comedy Quiz King of 1953" . . . that's Red Benson, emcee of Colgate's Phrase That Pays radio quiz show over WMAQ every weekday morning at 10:30. The red-headed "Master of Show Business" was recently given this top honor by the National Association of Gagwriters, an outfit that knows the serious side of comedy from front to back.

Good to see that Red is getting deserved recognition and credit for his mirth-provoking gags and antics on this WMAQ mid-morning feature.

Red Benson

Short notes on a red-hot radio fan! It takes considerably more than the ravages of nature to keep one Orlando, Florida listener from keeping tabs on the Barbours of radio's One Man's Family (WMAQ, Monday thru Friday, 6:45 PM). Seems that lightning struck the transmitter of the NBC outlet in Orlando and put the works out of commission for three hours. During the "silent air" period, this certain lady called the station and persuaded the announcer to keep his ear on NBC's incoming line and to phone her afterward with a full report of the program details.

The announcer obliged the lady . . . seems she hasn't missed a single broadcast of One Man's Family since it went on the air more than 21 years ago, and no mere stroke of lightning was going to ruin such a listening record. —Adv.

Wayne Griffin describes matches.

9:00 2 BOXING BOUTS—New York
Welterweight champion Kid Gavilan vs. Ralph "Tiger" Jones.
ED PAZDUR'S RATING: Gavilan has 93 wins, 13 defeats and 4 draws. Jones has 30 wins, 6 defeats and 3 draws. Jones is rated 10th. Gavilan, a colorful bolo punching champion, should win. His recent loss to Danny Womber was due to carelessness. Jones is aggressive and could take a punch but Gavilan should easily out-class him.

FIRST PERSON

PROGRAM OF THE WEEK

Unseen star of First Person, the camera, is in bed: technique lends new dimension to television drama.

FRED COE, executive producer of TV Playhouse and Mr. Peepers and one of TV's bright young veterans, has come up with one of the most imaginative program ideas of the year in his new First Person show.

It's the use of the subjective camera technique, in which the camera itself acts as the leading character in a drama. As employed by Coe's creative mind, the technique lends a new dimension to TV drama and the series represents one of the few summer replacements which should remain on the air through the regular season (NBC, Friday nights).

The subjective camera system, of course, is not new. But Coe can claim credit for having been the first to utilize it in TV, even pre-dating Robert Montgomery's use of it in his movie thriller of several years ago, "The Lady in the Lake." Coe first staged a subjective camera program back in 1946, when TV was in its early infancy. That one was titled First Person Singular. Since then the idea has become a regular feature of Du Mont's Plainclothesman, a whodunit series in which the lead character is never seen but is enacted by the camera.

In the hands of the wrong person, the technique could become just another gimmick. But Coe and the various writers who have contributed stories to the new series have wisely put it to the best possible use by staging stories tailored to the subjective camera demands. And in each program seen to date they have emerged with a winner.

The scripts run the gamut from farce to serious melodrama. The initial story, for example, told in touching and compelling terms the conflicts between a poor widower and his insecure little boy. In that one, the camera played the role of an employee of a desert cafe where the father and son spent a night. On a later program, the camera played the part of a shrewd but soft-hearted talent agent, trying to get a major TV acting role for a has-been actress. In all cases, of course, a live actor off-screen speaks the lines for the camera's role, either in subjective thinking or in actual dialogue with actors seen on the screen.

Nothing But the Best

EDDIE ALBERT's new Nothing But the Best show has apparently taken a leaf from the book of the old Garroway At Large program. It has the same imaginative approach, slick production, relaxed atmosphere and, like the At Large show, results in pleasantly relaxed viewing. The NBC program has been seen on Tuesdays but switches this week to Sunday nights for the duration of the summer months.

The similarity in format between Nothing But the Best and the old Dave Garroway program is more than mere coincidence. Ted Mills, who produced At Large, helped create this one. It is now being produced and directed by Bob Banner, who directed At Large, and is choreographed and staged by Edith Barstow, who enjoyed the same dual capacity for Garroway. Whoever dreamed up the idea of reuniting them, even if only for the summer, deserves the gratitude of all TV viewers.

Basically, Nothing But the Best is a variety show—but not "just another" variety show. The artists appearing each week are selected on the premise that they are the best in their respective fields, whether it is classical ballet, singing or jazz.

But even if the entertainers were second-raters, the production treatment they're accorded would make the show worth watching. Each number gets full scale production mountings, and the settings and lighting are certainly "nothing but the best." Of top importance is the fact that each performer's act is staged for the TV cameras, rather than having the cameras merely photograph the proceedings on a stage.

Albert has suffered several faulty starts in his TV career, but is at his peak on this show. As emcee, his relaxed approach not only ties in perfectly with the overall format but also helps to set and maintain that pace. He displays a warm personality. Occasionally he performs and pleasantly surprises with a fine singing voice.

TERESA BREWER, the little girl with the belting voice whom Bing Crosby calls, "the Sophie Tucker of the Girl Scouts," believes a building in New York made her famous.

It's the Brill Building on Broadway (the actual locale of Tin Pan Alley) in front of which a talent scout, Ritchie LiSella, met her just after hearing her sing in a small Manhattan night club. At the time, Teresa was ready to toss in the towel on her career and head back to her Toledo, O., home.

LiSella persuaded her to stay and in a few weeks got her a contract with a recording firm for whom she made Music, Music, Music which rocketed her to fame.

Last year, she and LiSella were approached by a young songwriter in the same building and he convinced her to record Till I Waltz Again With You, which has sold more than 1,500,000 disks at the present time.

The songstress, 22, is only five feet tall and weighs just 98 pounds. Despite her age, Teresa claims 18 years in show business. In addition to her hit records, personal appearances in many a big time theater and night club, she appears on TV in Summertime USA with Mel Torme. She also has completed her first movie, Those Sisters from Seattle.

The movie, in which Rhonda Fleming and the Bell sisters also appear, is about four red-haired sisters. Teresa's brown hair was dyed red for the film role.

The mother of two children, she lives in Scarsdale, N. Y.

GRANDMA MURRAY

Kathryn Murray and grandson, Philip Heimlich, 8 mos., frolic in nursery.

...She also hangs from chandeliers!

A FEW WEEKS ago, Kathryn Murray, a very bouncy lady for a grandmother, did a dance on The Arthur Murray Party called "The Haunted House." At its high spot, she hung from a chandelier.

"I really think everyone dreams of hanging from chandeliers," she says, "the same way they want to slide down banisters. I'm just lucky because I get the chance."

Of the Murray clan, such golden opportunities seem to be confined to Kathryn alone. Arthur is a sedate, businesslike man who appears on TV mostly in Strauss waltzes. Twin daughters, Phyllis and Jane, 27, who never appear on TV, haven't adjusted to their mother's antics. After the haunted house episode, Phyllis, a mother herself of two small girls, and the wife of a Camden, N. J., history teacher, telephoned to ask Kathryn, "But do you think the things you do are suitable?"

Kathryn isn't in the least concerned with whether or not her gyrations are suitable. She says, "You're a long time dead and a long time sitting in a rocking chair—relaxing. As a dancer, I can't sit back and watch other people being flung, now that I've been flung, myself."

Feels Guilty If Idle

Much of this enthusiasm, which is also a form of nervous energy, is rooted in her childhood. Her father, the late Abraham Lincoln Kohnfelder, was advertising manager of a New Jersey newspaper. "He went to work at 7:30 A.M.," she says, "so I got up at the same time. I still wake up early. I was taught to do household chores and couldn't go out to play until after I had done them. Now, I feel guilty if I'm idle."

One of Kathryn's claims to fame is that she doesn't tire easily. "Just this morning," she continued, "I awoke at a quarter to five and rewrote a section of our (dance studio) training manuals. My mind is very clear then."

Despite such clarity of mind, Kathryn can be very much the fluttery woman. She hadn't the slightest idea of how much money she earns as vice-president of Arthur Murray dance studios. When Arthur told her—$100,000 a year—and there seems to be complete equality there, Arthur also earns $100,000 a year—she said, "I don't believe it and won't until I see the whites of those bills."

Typifies Dream of Success

Although not a club woman, nor a club woman type (she abhors the suggestion) Kathryn typifies the great middle class dream of success, status and recognition. Of the former, she says, "I couldn't imagine myself acting like the women in the cartoons—the ones that spend the day at club meetings, luncheons, the dressmakers, and the hairdressers, and then say, 'But I haven't a minute to myself.'" She added, "A woman all wrapped up in herself is a small bundle."

Kathryn and Arthur: she has driving force and he furnishes the artistic talent.

Asked where she picked up these choice truisms, Kathryn said, "I used to write daily reminders for the Arthur Murray dance studio calendars. It got so I talked in 'sayings'."

Although married 28 years, Arthur treats Kathryn a little like the sweet child bride who must be reasoned with gently. "But don't understate Kathryn's role," one Murray observer said, "She may be like the mother bird, but she's been very busy feathering and re-feathering their nest."

Whatever the age difference, Kathryn is 47, and Arthur doesn't tell, the Arthur Murray dance studios were established before they met. The 18-year-old Kathryn was attending normal school. "He was so distinguished I was afraid he wouldn't take me out," she says, "so I said I was 20.

"My father was furious when he heard I was going out with a 'hoofer' and my mother wouldn't allow me out, except on weekends. We almost didn't get together because Arthur kept asking me for week-day dates. I was ashamed to let him know I couldn't go out, I kept saying I was busy."

Her capacity for bubbly talk was developed even at that time. Kathryn feels everyone should work on the art of conversation and on the art of "being charming." "On our first date, we went to dinner and talked so much, we missed the theater. Arthur said, 'We have so much to say to each other, we ought to get married.'

"Now, he says he married me because I was the only Hoboken flapper he had ever met."

Kathryn actually came from Jersey City.

In addition to her verbosity, Kathryn managed to take a very firm hand on the inner workings of the business. She gives all credit to Arthur. "I've never had an original idea in my life" she says. "Arthur has the brains and the ideas, I just have the patience to carry them out."

According to observers, behind such modesty is a shrewd business woman. "Arthur may have the artistic talent," one friend says, "but Kathryn is the driving force."

Kathryn takes care of all the factual reports for branch offices of the Arthur Murray studios, handles all correspondence, and writes the training manuals for the directors.

A more obvious facet of the Murray shrewdness is that The Arthur Murray Party, an advertisement for the Arthur Murray dance studios, is sponsored by Bristol-Myers. This is something akin to Pepsodent sponsoring The Ford Theater.

Kathryn justifies it, saying, "Sure we advertise Arthur Murray, but we also entertain.

"The only difference in our show's format, now that we're over at CBS, is that I won't be on every week. Arthur wants me to take some rest—I'll skip every third week."

Dancing, according to Kathryn, is very relaxing. She even thinks her calisthenic routines are fun. "Arthur likes to see me jitterbugging," she says. "But of course, he doesn't think of me as being my age. He's always pointing out some 20-year-old in a pink, frilly dress and suggesting I buy clothes like that. I just say, 'yes, dear,' but don't. But then, Arthur thinks I can do anything. I can't, but I let him think I can."

Kathryn does jitterbugging routine with Peter Gladke in rehearsal for TV program.

Horseflies,

ol' gray mares

and EDDY ARNOLD

He's out to prove that TV fans have taste for 'country music'

ON CHICAGO's Michigan Boulevard, where sophistication reigns, the usual hum of big city activity is being disrupted this summer by strange music. Each Tuesday and Thursday evening, from the Windy City's Studebaker Theater, come strong blasts of barn dance tunes.

The predominant voice belongs to a droning country baritone who introduces each show by yodeling like a hen in labor. This is the country music of Eddy Arnold, self-styled guitarist, who arrived in Chicago July 7 to televise a summer series.

Eddy, a humble, Tennessee-bred youth who's handling Dinah Shore's chores for 13 weeks, comes to TV with a heap of experience. Last summer he broke into the new medium as replacement for CBS's Perry Como. This year NBC hired Eddy for a 1953 fill-in—and signed him to a five-year radio-TV contract.

That Eddy's country tunes can compete with the sophisticated pop melodies of either Como or Shore is, in itself, a somewhat startling fact. Citified folks, used to an aura of glamor about their TV stars, are greeted instead by a ruddy farm youth with scrubbed cheeks, a wide innocent grin and a pleading, please-like-me manner which is fully disarming.

Despite this apparent air of naivete, Eddy has won a raft of admirers.

In the recording department, his RCA Victor disks have passed the 21 million mark in sales, an achievement that could stand up next to any of today's popular singers. Back in 1948, he recorded his version of Anytime which sold over 650,000 records before it was popularized by another Eddie—surname, Fisher. His Just A Little Lovin', also cut in 1948, sold in the neighborhood of half a million disks. The same year, he recorded Bouquet of Roses which zoomed over the 1,250,000 mark in sales. But the record that launched him on his singing career in 1945 was a plaintive little ballad about horseflies and old gray mares.

Eddy, his guitar, jeans, outsized Stetson and dwarf-sized string ties, sailed into Chicago on a wave of audience acclaim which was nurtured in Tennessee soil. There Eddy first earned his reputation as the Tennessee Plowboy. A graduate of radio's Grand Ole Opry where he appeared as singer with Pee Wee King and his Golden West Cowboys, Eddy soon became identified with the Southland's Checkerboard Jamboree. He now headlines his own weekly radio opus, the Eddy Arnold Show. Last year he even starred in two Hollywood productions, Feudin' Rhythm and Hoedown.

Eddy's career was beset with the usual hardships of show business personalities who climbed to fame by the well-known hard way. Son of a Henderson, Tenn., cotton and corn farmer, Eddy was a product of the southern sharecropping system. At 15, however, a cousin gave him a guitar and that started his climb.

When he was 18, Eddy left the farm to pursue a show business career. He ended up playing one night stands, singing on radio stations, in cafes, beer bistros, auctions and even in a funeral parlor. But it was these slim footholds that led to his job with Opry and his resulting success.

Eddy, who used to have his own hillbilly band, uses only two "key men" as regulars on his TV show. Understandably, they both play similar instruments—Roy Wiggins with his steel guitar, and Hank Garland on the electric guitar. In the vocal department, Eddy employs the Dickens Sisters, who formerly appeared with Pee Wee King and also with Arnold on his Nashville radio show. The three girls, part of a family of 10 children, have four replacements standing by at home to fill in if needed.

While Eddy brings his country music northwards, his 107-acre farm near Nashville is left in the care of his wife, an Oklahoma belle named Eddy and Dickens Sisters: the girls have four family stand-bys waiting at home.

Sally, and their two youngsters, Jo Ann, 7, and Dickie, 4. Eddy also dabbles in a number of business enterprises down Tennessee way.

His prosperity, though, is apparently well-concealed. A few times after his shows, he has received envelopes containing $5 bills from his fans. "I shore musta sounded awful sad in them songs," he drawls.

Show your petticoat!

GONE are the days when you were no longer a lady if your petticoat showed. Nowadays the more your petticoat shows the more "lady-like" you are. Many of the new summer skirts are designed deliberately to show the petticoats. Instead of one seam up to the placket, the new skirts have buttons or snaps from the hem to the waist and are left open to show the petticoat—either in the front or back or on the side. For instance a black or colored taffeta dance skirt with a ruffled white organdy petticoat is particularly effective if open in the back for dancing. For daytime wear a petticoat of striped linen under a linen skirt of a solid color or a flowered cotton, ruffled and starched, is very gay. Even denim play-skirts are worn over checked or plaid cotton petticoats. Now a change of petticoat can give you a change of costume.

Marciano gets to play with the younger set

ROCKY MARCIANO, a gifted television actor whose supporting cast let him down in his last vehicle, is to try again for his coaxial public on Sept. 24. On that date the heavyweight champion of the world will keep his postponed rendezvous with Roland LaStarza, the only living human who can claim a victory over Marciano.

Roland can't support the claim, because two of the three officials voted against him when he and Marciano met as undefeated apprentices back in 1950, but a majority of authorities at ringside thought he was entitled to the decision by a shade. Everybody except Al Weill, who is about as impartial as you'd expect a man to be who owned the champion outright, has felt that LaStarza deserved a return match long before this.

Now Roland's going to get his deferred chance, and for the first time in recent years Marciano will be asked to fight a young man somewhere near his own age.

It is no fault of Marciano's, for he has nothing to say about making matches, that all his headline bouts have been against elder statesmen. Since he achieved national prominence, he has been fed exclusively on aged meat—Joe Louis, Lee Savold, Jersey Joe Walcott.

In Rocky's last television appearance he was teamed with Walcott, who had made the finest fight of his life while losing the championship to Marciano in September, 1952. The rematch was expected to be the biggest thing in the entertainment field since Birth of a Nation but Walcott declined to cooperate. The old gentleman accepted one resounding clop and retired to his rocking chair.

This brought outraged howls from customers who had paid $50 a seat to attend the exercises, and even louder animal cries from the television public, which had paid nothing and, consequently, felt doubly cheated.

The first Marciano-Walcott bout was wonderful and the second a stinkeroo of abnormal proportions. The first Marciano-LaStarza bout was a dull business, so perhaps the second will be cataclysmic.

The word is perhaps. Fact is, it is difficult to believe that LaStarza has any kind of chance against the best one-punch hitter of our time.

Marciano is, essentially, an offensive fighter, whose strength is all in the power of his attack. LaStarza is, by nature, a defensive boxer, congenitally cautious. Ninety-nine times out of a hundred when the heavyweight championship is at stake, it is the bold attacker who prevails against the safety-first guy.

This rule does not always hold, but there is a special reason for believing it will in this instance. Al Weill picked LaStarza as Marciano's opponent. Al Weill is more or less human, and consequently he can err. But he isn't so human as to err often.
